

THE ROCKIT

L.A.'S ONLY ROCK & ROLL NEWSPAPER

NUMBER 11 • NOVEMBER 13, 2006 •

DIE HUNNS

You Rot Me

Label: Volcom

Review by: Andrew Schwartz

On Die Hunn's latest release, You Rot Me, you can count on hearing classic punk rock, giving ode to bands like The Clash and Social Distortion. The first two tracks on You Rot Me capture the raw sound of a classic underground band. However, by the time you reach the title track, a much more sophisticated side is displayed. This five-piece group, consists of U.S. Bombs leader and skate legend, Duane Peters, bassist and singer Cory Parks (formerly of Nashville Pussy), guitarist Zander Schloss (The Weirdos, Circle Jerks, Joe Strummer), guitarist Nate Shaw (The Lizzies, The Women, The Skulls) and drummer Jamie Reidling. On the song "Don't Want to Hear It Anymore," Die Hunns demonstrates that punk rock is not always raw and tough but can also show other emotions. Cory Parks' melodic vocals, along with Schloss's guitar solo and sensitive lyrics come straight from the heart. All in all, Die Hunn's You Rot Me brings a good name to punk rock.